WHY INTERNATIONAL STUDIES?

What are my future career options with international studies?

No matter where you see yourself in the future, the International Studies Option will help give you a competitive edge in what has become a global world. If you choose to continue your studies at a senior college, the International Studies Option may be compatible and/or complimentary to a wide range of course programs or careers, including:

- International Relations
- Pre-Law
- Human Rights and Citizenship
- Diplomacy
- Criminal Justice
- Global Security and Terrorism
- Languages and Literature
- Journalism
- Education
- Business
- Communications
- Travel and Tourism

What if I am undecided about what I want to study?

We know that the first few years of college are often exploratory in nature. The International Studies Option is ideal because it is offered within a larger Liberal Arts major. This means that although you will be choosing from a wide selection of international studies coursework, the degree you receive will be a broad-based Liberal Arts degree that will keep all your options open to you both during and after your studies at community college.

What if I change my mind about my major?

Not a problem! This is why the Liberal Arts major is so ideal, because it keeps student options comprehensive and open. If you change your mind, for whatever reason, simply see an adviser who will be happy to make your requested enrollment changes and advise you more generally.

What would I study?

The Liberal Arts curriculum emphasizes courses that are designed to develop judgment & understanding about human beings' relationship to the social and cultural facets of their environment. Students develop a wide range of skills that employers value such as critical thinking, problem solving, research & written communication. The courses are designed to be transferable to other colleges & universities. Students have the flexibility of transferring to a wide range of programs, including (but not limited to) those with a global focus such as foreign language or literature, area studies, global studies & international relations.
